NO U. S. CONFIRMATION

Big Force Of B-29's Pound
Japanese-Held Port
Of Nanking, China

By International News Service
Japan's imperial high command revealed today that "about 80"
American B-29 bombers attacked the Nipponese home islands of Kyushu and Saishu in a daylight raid.

The giant Superfortresses apparently hit from high level, concentrating their blows against the western portions of Kyushu, largest of the empire islands south of Honshu. Additional blows were struck at Saishu, which lies some 200 miles west of Hushu near the China mainland, the enemy report said.

The Japanese communique, broadcast by Radio Tokyo and heard by the FCC, stated the B-29's attacked from "above the clouds," and that the planes "fled after dropping bombs." The Japanese communique did not mention an earlier announcement in Washington that B-29's had raided Nanking, capital of the China puppet government.

First disclosure of the attack came from the Domei agency which indicated that the raid was a mass bombing but failed to report Saishu island has been hit.

"Scores" of Bombers
The enemy report emphasized that "several scores" of American aircraft were sighted. They were described as planes "belonging to the United States Air Force in China," presumably the Herculean B-29 Superfortress bombers.

There was no immediate confirmation of the attack by Allied authorities, although, in Washington, Gen. H. H. Arnold disclosed that B-29's had raided enemy facilities at Nanking, the vital Yangtze river port in occupied can raid as being comprised of "several scores" of planes indicated that it may be the greatest of several sky-borne attacks thus far carried out on the Japanese home islands.

The enemy dispatch, recorded by the FCC in New York, stated the American raiders "appeared over the northern sector of Kyushu island where scores of prime industrial targets are located including the city of Nagasaki and the Sasebo navy yard.

Industrial Areas
In the northern sector are located the industrial areas of Yawata and Fukuoka.

Kyushu, the largest home island south of Honshu, lies approximately 500 miles due east of Shanghai on the China mainland.

The Japanese report said the raiders, "appeared" at 10 a. m. (Japanese time), and claimed that Nipponese "air defense units" gave the "enemy raiders a hot interception." Although Dorel referred to the American planes as, "raiders," it failed to specify exactly where the bombing was carried out.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 — A large force of B-29 Superfortresses bombers struck dock and warehouse facilities at the important Japanese-held port of Nanking in China today.

Disclosure that the huge American bombers had joined in the desperate fight to prevent complete capture of the Chinese coast by the Japanese was made by the war department in a terse communique.

The war department announcement that the B-29's carried out a daylight mission on Nanking from China bases came as the Japanese claimed they had captured the cities of Kwelin and Luchow, former sites of U. S. air bases in China.

"A large task force of B-29 aircraft today, Nov. 11, attacked the dock and warehouse areas of Japanese occupied Nanking, China," said the text of the B-29 communique.

There was no mention of the number of planes involved nor the damage done but the communique said that "details will be released as soon as they become available."

LOCAL MARINES INJURED IN EXPLOSION AT CAMP

Mrs. Mabel Sawyer, of Watt street, has received word from her husband, George Sawyer, of the U. S. Marine Corps, in training at Camp Lejeune, N. C., that he and Ralph Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Baker, of East Ringgold, also in training at that camp, had received minor injuries in an explosion there.

Sawyer's injuries are in the right ear and eye and Baker has cuts on his face from eye to lip. Sawyer stated in the letter that both were recovering nicely.

GULLETT LEAVING

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 11—The nearby Lockbourne Army Air Base will have a new commander within the next few days, it was revealed today. Col. John S. Gullett, the present commander, announced that he will relinquish the command for an undisclosed assignment, under orders from the War Department. The 48-year-old veteran pilot assumed command of Lockbourne on Sept. 3, 1943.

LITTLE PEACE PROSPECT IN RAIL STRIKE

CHICAGO, Nov. 11—Little prospect of immediate settlement appeared in sight today as a strike of 600 union workers of two electric railroads serving Chicago's west and north shore suburbs entered its second day.

Thousands of suburban dwellers were forced to scramble again for other means of transportation to their work in the city. The burden on substitute lines, however, was somewhat less today than yesterday because of smaller Armistice Day weekend traffic.

Involved in the strike were the Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee railroad and the Chicago, Aurora & Elgin railroad, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

The unions demand a 9-cent an hour pay increase for motormen, conductors, switchmen and collectors. The railroads have offered a 5-cent raise in line with a recommendation by an emergency committee appointed by President Roosevelt to arbitrate last September following a previous strike threat.

Procedure under the national railway mediation act has been exhausted and only presidential intervention or an agreement between railroad and union officials can end the work stoppage.

Leaders of both sides, however, stuck firmly by their previous announcements that no ground would be given.

CHURCHILL AND EDEN IN PARIS

chilly air while a band played the British and French anthems.

Churchill and his party proceeded from the airport to Paris proper in motor cars accompanied by a heavy motorcycle escort. The route was closely guarded by police and soldiers. The extreme security precautions extended to war correspondents, who were issued tags bearing their photographs and official stamps.

The prime minister's plane was escorted across the channel by ten Spitfires. Every precaution was taken from London to Paris to safeguard him.

This morning Churchill and De Gaulle took part in the armistice ceremony at the Arc De Triomphe. Paris crowds cheered the two leaders and other Allied diplomats arriving at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and thronged the streets for a parade in which all the Allied armies were represented.

The crowds began gathering at an early hour despite snappy, winter weather and soon filled the long avenue of the Champs Elysees leading to the Arc De Triomphe and the tomb. More than 9,000 uniformed police were on duty in the streets and even more police in plain clothes mingled with the crowds and watched houses and roofs lining the route of the parade. Masses of British, French and American flags were everywhere.

PEACE MAKING ROLE DEMANDED

battles—we, the comrades of the Unknown Soldier, veterans of two wars, will help formulate the terms of an enduring peace. It can be done only by those of us who know the horrors of war; the contrasting security of peace."

Scheiberling cited the official policy of the American Legion adopted at its Chicago convention, that:

"Twenty-five years ago, the First World War was won by the blood and sacrifice of our fighting forces, but the peace was sacrificed and lost on the altar of political expediency and public indifference.

"This tragic blunder must not be repeated. Representatives of those who have fought in World War I and World War II should certainly sit at the peace table and exercise an active influence in formulating the terms of peace."

The Legion commander said "we can have peace after this war," adding that "it lies in the consciousness of free men determined to fight for their freedom, it lies in the strength of a united America, working with all freedom-loving nations of the world in an effective association for peace."

Scheiberling reiterated the Legion's demand for a strong America, bolstered by a citizenry trained to bear arms in defense of their country. He also demanded that America redeem its pledge to all her fighting men—that their widows and orphans shall be cared for if their husbands and fathers give their lives to their nation.

FIFTH MEMBER OF STORE RAID GANG CAPTURED

Fifth member of a gang which robbed the Kinsey clothing store of clothes valued at $10,000 in 1942 was in custody Saturday.

FBI authorities announced Carl H. Marksberry, 32, Cincinnati, arrested by G-men in Kansas City, was to be returned to Cincinnati to face federal charges.

Now all five men who participated in the robbery here April 17, 1942, have been arrested. Four others are serving federal prison terms, one at Chillicothe, two at Atlanta, and one in another prison.

Men's suits, neckties, jewelry and sport coats made up the loot taken from the Kinsey store. Approximately half of it was recovered when two members of the men were in the gang which operated a clothing theft ring in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky and was also accused of stealing cars, tires and accessories.

usual world production of all grain.

Soybean production, estimated now at 194 million bushels, will be two million bushels shy of last year's record output, but still in the bumper brackets.

The forecast for potatoes has been raised over seven million bushels from the Oct. 1 estimate to a total of 388 million bushels, and there will be plenty of sweet potatoes—seventy-six million bushels, or an increase of nearly three million bushels.

Dairy products, too, showed upward production trends with the egg output revealing an average of seven percent more eggs per 100 hens than during the same month in any previous year. Reports on milk production showed the yield per cow five percent higher than on the same date in 1943.

Although more milk cows are being well fed, the proportion being milked is lower than usual, the department said, particularly in the butter producing areas.

PLASMA AND HEMO, two pet sheep at Bushnell General hospital in Brigham City, Utah, bid fair to become the world's champion blood donors. Besides their strictly medical functions, the sheep provide wool, which is converted into blankets at a local woolen mill. (International)

PRINTER AND DETECTIVE

A detective and the man who knew the most in the world about American printing died the other day—Douglas C. McMurtie of Chicago. He spent the greater part of his life in studying printing in the United States, and in writing its history. He was thus led to the detective job by which he is apt to be longest remembered.

This was the running down of all books printed in this country before 1876. Discovering how few early American books had been traced, he set out to make a list of them all, numbering over a million volumes. Without the help of the much abused W. P. A., he could never have done it. The W. P. A. furnished him 2,000 helpers, who listed the early books in every library to which they could gain access. Considering that one library alone, Harvard's, had more than four million cards to be examined, it can be seen how big a job this was. Eventually the task was finished, and from 15 to 20 large volumes, each covering a state, have been published, listing these books and stating where each was to be found.

Some queer results appeared. The only copy surviving of the first book printed in Cleveland was found in a Congregational library in Boston; a rare early book of Arkansas can be found today only in the New Hampshire State Library. Without McMurtie's finding list, people interested in these early volumes could not have located them. His work has proved a public benefaction to everyone interested in the beginnings of American history and literature.

BUY A PLANE?

WANT to buy a car? How about taking a plane instead? The War Department announces that 18,031 military planes have been declared surplus and may be bought by anyone interested. Price not stated. Nearly three-fourths are trainer planes. However, 7.7 per cent are bombers, in case there is anyone on whom you would like to drop a bomb, and 1.6 per cent are transports. Buy a transport plane and share the ride?

Of course there is the slight problem of gasoline just now, but this War Department announcement is going to sound very commonplace after a few years.

Except that there is hope for a time coming soon when no one will want to drop any more bombs on anyone else—not ever!

The most notable thing about this election was the production of predictions.

Also, with the election over, Americans can turn to the next War Bond Drive. With a fraction of the election energy used, how they can put that one over!

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

PHILLIPS LETTER CONTINUED

This is a continuation of the Phillips letter started in Friday's Herald.

WASHINGTON—There is thus a complete deadlock and I should imagine that the Viceroy and Churchill are well satisfied to let the deadlock remain as long as possible. That is, at least, the general impression in most Indian circles.

"The problem, therefore, is: can anything be done to break this deadlock through our help? It seems to me that all we can do is to try to induce the Indian political leaders to meet together and discuss the form of government which they regard as applicable to India, and thus to show the world that they have sufficient intelligence to tackle the problem. (We must not assume that they will adopt the American or British systems. In view of the importance of guaranteeing protection to the minorities, a majority form of government may not be applicable and a coalition may prove to be the only practical way of guaranteeing internal harmony.) We cannot suppose that the British Government can or will transfer power to India by the scratch of a pen at the conclusion of the peace conference unless there is an Indian government fit to receive it. The question remains, therefore, how to induce the leaders to begin now to prepare for their future responsibilities.

"There is, perhaps, a way out of the deadlock which I suggest to you, not because I am sure of its success, but because I think it is worthy of your consideration.

PHILLIPS' PLAN

With the approval and blessing of the British Government, an invitation could be addressed to the leaders of all Indian political groups, on behalf of the President of the United States, to meet together to discuss plans for the future. The assembly could be presided over by an American who could exercise influence in harmonizing the endless divisions of caste, religion, race, and political views. The conference might well be under the patronage of the King Emperor could give a fresh assurance to the President of the Soviet Union and Chiang Kai-shek, in order to bring pressure to bear on Indian politicians. Upon the issuance of the invitations, the King Emperor could give a fresh assurance of the intention of the British government to transfer power to India upon a certain date as well as his desire to grant a provisional setup for the duration. The conference could be held in any city in India except Delhi.

"American chairmanship would have the advantage, not only of expressing the interest of America in the future independence of India, but would also be a guarantee to the Indians of the British offer of independence. This is an important point because, as I have already said in previous letters, British promises in this regard are no longer believed.

"If either of the principal parties refused to attend the conference, it would be notice to all the world that India was not ready for self-government, and I doubt whether a political leader would put himself in such a position. Mr. Churchill and Mr. Amery may be obstacles, for, notwithstanding statements to the contrary, India is governed from London, down to the smallest details.

A Needed Reform

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

I WAS talking the other day to a man of about my own age, who, like myself, was in the last war, and was called back into service this time in the very important new division of transportation. And I said to him that one thing must be a relief this time, which is the uniform that has been designed. And he said, oh! how right I was. That tunic job we used to have with the high collar saving into our necks. When I see pictures of the German prisoners with that old style uniform I almost feel sorry for them on that account.

Our 1944 army has shirts and coats with regular collars, and crops of bolts are almost unknown. Also they can wear trousers. I used to go out to a ward full of sick soldiers attired in riding breeches and leather leggings. And that wasn't considered quite regulation. On dress occasions I had to wear boots and spurs. I was never rarer to a horse than across the parade ground. And I went to tell the world the job of getting boots off a civilian doctor not used to army life who has been tramping over twenty or more wards on a hot Texas day, when he got home on a hot Texas night was a piece of engineering that required not only the help of the good wives, but often the help of the good wives of half the neighborhood.

The male being a superior animal is likely to get awfully funny at times at the expense of the female and especially her wearing apparel. But he might turn an inward glance upon himself at times and I am not sure but that this would not be a propitious moment in the world's history to start a reforming in men's clothing.

Stiff Collars

For instance, the stiff white collars. That is a matter of hygiene as well as general common sense. This collar job that I am speaking of is attached, fore and aft, to the neck band of a shirt.

Trouser Cuffs

Cuffs on the trousers I leave to someone with a gift for invective. They accumulate some nice street dust and dirt, I admit it.

What about those four buttons on the cuff of the coat? What do they button on to?

As to hats—men are so comical about women's hats—what about the dandy little ribbon with the natty bow that is always put on a man's hat? What does it do in a workaday world? I thank you.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. E. B.—I have a thermometer and occasionally take my temperature. According to my reading my temperature is usually nearer 99 than 98. Is that too high?

Answer: That is just what it should be. The normal body temperature is 98.6 degrees.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

"Such a fuss about nothing," Craig said, but winced nevertheless as I worked. "If it had been a Jap bullet—" I commented.

"You'll be dodging bullets soon enough," I commented.

"So long as I dodge 'em," he grinned.

"When do you go?"

"The end of this week."

"Nonsense!"

"I'd get up now if you'd let me."

"And start your wound bleeding."

"Okay, okay," he said but looked rebellious, so I realized I'd have to watch him.

I eased him back onto the pillow. The pain of even that slight motion brought moisture to his forehead. Well, it was just luck that the bullet had missed his heart. He relaxed and grinned a little. "The brave soldier," he murmured, deriding his weakness.

"You're lucky to be alive," I said impulsively. "Mr. Brent, what do you think really happened last night?"

"I don't know what to think."

"Do you think it was accident?" I persisted.

He said thoughtfully after a moment. "My father had no enemies. He had been about to say no enemies. He stopped and changed it. 'No one would murder my father.' He paused again and then went on, his eyes still closed. 'My father and I had our differences. Yet we loved each other. The differences we had didn't separate us.'"

"I'm sure he felt as you do. I'm sure he was proud of you."

"No," interrupted Craig quickly. "No, he wasn't proud of me. Not that I've ever done anything to make anybody proud of me."

"I meant, about your getting into the air force. Having a son going to fight for his country."

Craig laughed a little, on an unsteady note; then explained, "You don't understand. That was one of our differences. He wasn't afraid; it isn't that. He just didn't want me to go to war."

"Why not?"

"Because he—because... Oh, he's nothing, Miss Keate."

I waited, thinking of what Craig had said—or rather had failed to say. Then he added, "It was nothing my father could help. He'd felt that way for years. And, anyway, he changed later. Since December seventh, I mean. Since we entered the war."

He changed the subject brusquely with, "Pete will be going too. He thinks in another few weeks."

"Pete? Oh, Mr. Peter Huber?"

Craig went on, moving and wincing. "Pete's been here several weeks. Came on from the coast to get into some branch of the service. He's waiting now to hear. Ouch..." he said, moving his shoulder experimentally. "What makes it hurt like that?"

"It's doing all right. No infection. Did Mrs. Brent know Pete in school, too?"

"Mrs. Brent? No. The corner of his mouth twitched. 'Pete's more or less susceptible.'"

"Susceptible! Oh, you mean..."

"There wasn't anybody to mean except Alexia."

Craig yawned.

"But then..." I was struck by a sudden and far-fetched speculation. If Peter Huber had fallen madly in love with Alexia, there existed a motive for Conrad's murder.

But Craig guessed my unuttered thought. "He didn't murder my father to get Alexia. Pete's a good egg. Besides, Alexia doesn't go for him."

Which was true enough. Alexia had certainly wasted no time in making her intentions clear and they obviously had nothing to do with Peter Huber.

I put away my instrument case. After I had made Craig comfortable and was sure he was warm, I pushed aside the heavy curtains and opened the windows to air the room. It was cold, much colder than it had been the day before, with the lowering kind of gray sky that threatens snow.

The day went on quietly. District Attorney Seger went away after the talk with Craig. State Police Lieutenant Nugent vanished, too, but I believe busied himself for some time about the house. Once a policeman came to the door with an ink pad and took my fingerprints; I must say I didn't relish the little attention but did not intentionally smudge one hand as he seemed to think. The glass slipped.

He would have taken Craig's fingerprints, too, but Craig seemed asleep, and I wouldn't permit rousing him. The policeman went away, and I caught a glimpse of Lieutenant Nugent down by the stairs, listening but not talking to Be-Drue was sleeping. The little dog, Sir Francis, lying on the foot of the bed, growled in a kind of formal way. It didn't wake Drue and I retired quietly and went for a walk.

No one was in the hall below, so we weren't then under close guard. The front door closed heavily behind me and I walked along the driveway toward the public road. The air felt moist, but it was not snowing. Dusk was coming on and it was very quiet. Twenty-four hours ago I had had my first indication of smoldering tragedy and terror in that house that lay behind me.

The drive went down a long curve among clumps of evergreens. When I reached the huge stone gate-posts I stepped out briskly along the public road which wound north and west.

Somewhere along the way, Delphine, the cat, picked me up and I looked down at his battle-scarred ears and wondered what had roused him so suddenly last night. A footstep? Clothing brushing against the door? Or had it been something more tenuous even than that; an awareness of movement outside that door that was denied to merely human ears? And I wondered, too, what had struck the door so sharply and so hard. Like a hammer.

Presently, having skirted a meadow and reached a little ridge, I could see the village of Baliford about a mile or two away. Delphine decided to leave and did so, on secret feline business into the meadow where his gray body slid into the shadowy growth near at hand and vanished. Leaving me alone.

Standing on that hill, I began to think again of the means of Conrad Brent's death. The use of poison presupposed a murderer with some knowledge of drugs, accessibility to digitals, and a certain amount of ingenuity in inducing the victim to take it. And to take it before Drue had returned with her unlikely hypodermic dose... Who could?

Craig Brent had merely denied words that were suspiciously prophetic. Against this he had told a story to account for the bruise on his temple which not only sounded true but indicated a line of inquiry the police would do well to follow. And while there may be few real alibis for a poison murder, still he had been under my observation at the time Conrad was induced to take poison. He was also in a drugged state, which would have prohibited clear thinking or quick action. It was not likely that two potential murderers existed in their immediate circle—both intent on cutting off the Brents, root and branch.

No, I didn't think that Craig had murdered Conrad Brent. And it was true that he had done his best to divert suspicion from Drue.

STRIPPING OUT SUITS

PLAYING at a trump contract, it frequently can pay to strip out all cards of two side suits from both your hand and the dummy before you play either the third side suit or the trumps. If you have to lose the lead to the opponents then in either that remaining side suit or trumps, the defenders must return either one of those two into whatever tenaces you have, or else one of the suits of which you are now divested, giving you a chance for a ruff and discard.

As soon as West led the diamond 3 and South saw the situation facing him, he realized that East was quite likely to have the important honors sitting over North's major suits, especially since East had opened the bidding while vulnerable. So he decided to protect himself against losing four tricks in the majors.

Doing that necessitated his eliminating the minor suits from both of his own holdings. Winning the diamond lead with the A, he led the club 6 to the Q, ruffed the diamond 8 with the heart 3, overtook the club K with the A, scored the diamond K and then led the club 5, which he ruffed with the heart 7. East discarding a diamond. Then he led the heart J, playing low from the dummy.

East's goose was cooked. The best he could do was win that trick with the Q and two more with his heart A and spade A. But he couldn't help making the rest of the dummy's cards good, since a diamond return would bring a ruff and discard. If East had decided not to discard on the club 5, and had ruffed with his heart Q, he would have been end-played just the same, but a trick earlier!

PASTOR TO TALK ON HANDLING
UNAVOIDABLES

"Handling Life's Unavoidables" is the sermon theme chosen by the Rev. Clarence Swearingen, pastor of the First Methodist church for Sunday morning. The sermon will show that while we have great strength, and are very efficient as individuals, there are many things in life which we are unable to handle. All of us must face situations in life which cannot be avoided.

"How can we be victorious under such circumstances?" is one of the questions to be answered by the Rev. Mr. Swearingen.

The choir will sing the anthem, "Recession", by DeKoven, under the direction of Miss Caroline Sites. Miss Jeanette Wenrich, church organist, will play "Third Sonata in C-minor" by Guilford; "Andante", by Martin, and "Postlude", by Dubois.

McDaniels, who first rose to notice in the East last August with a four-round knockout over young Aaron Perry, of Washington, D. C., snatched the verdict from Sammy with a grueling, bruising finish in the last four rounds.

99-Yard Run Spoils Final Football Game; Tigers Lose 19 To 14

Another football season was history Saturday but it will be a long time before Circleville fans forget the last game of the 1944 schedule.

The Tigers and quite a crowd of fans went to Washington C. H. Friday night to trounce Washington but came home on the short end of a 19-14 score.

Fans were stunned to see a Washington C. H. team which had not won a game all season take a 13-0 first half lead. Then they were sent home mumbling to themselves when Danny O'Brien galloped 99 yards with an intercepted pass with less than a minute to play to defeat Circleville.

The loss was felt by all Circleville fans but particularly unhappy were 11 seniors who have finished their high school careers and a few juniors who may be in service before another football season rolls around. Final game was played by Co-Captains Jim Wells and Freck Heath, Jim Dade, Bob Lovenshimer, Bart Deming, Dudley Coffland, Dick Shaw, George Towers and Dave Walters. Bill Weller and Joseph Anderson Jr. watched from the sidelines.

The defeat cost Circleville undisputed second place in the South Central Ohio league, forcing the Tigers to share the runner-up spot with Wilmington, Washington and Hillsboro tied for fourth with one win each.

After trailing for most of the first half the Tigers finally came to life to make the halftime score 13-7. In the third quarter they looked more like the winning team home fans have watched all season and forged ahead by a single point.

Late in the fourth quarter with the score 14-13 the Tigers got a break when Leon Sims, who furnished about the only bright spot in the play of the Tigers, recovered a fumble on the Washington 23.

Three ground plays made first down on the 13. Hill made a couple of yards then Heath was trapped for a five-yard loss. The Tigers went to the air and the first pass fell incomplete. Then with a minute left to play Sims tossed another and O'Brien grabbed it out of the air on the one-yard line and galloped straight up the sidelines for a touchdown. Mitchell missed the extra point but it did not matter, Washington had won its first game of the season.

Circleville had time left for four plays after receiving the kickoff but three passes fell incomplete and Hennis failed to make first down on fourth down. Washington taking over on the Tiger 29 just before the final gun sounded.

The Blue Lions started out fast and showed the Tigers they meant business. The first score came after a march from the Circleville 48 yard line, where the Lions had returned a punt late in the initial period. Boylan started the march with 11 yards on an end-around play. Three plays later a Burris to Mitchell pass was good for 25 yards and a touchdown.

Mitchell missed the try for extra point.

Circleville could get nowhere after receiving the kickoff and Hennis was forced to punt. Again the Blue Lions brought the ball to the 48 and started out for touchdown land. Burris passed to Boylan who was forced out on the Circleville 9 on the first play of the second quarter. On the next play Mitchell circled end for the second score. This time his kick was good.

Circleville again could get nowhere and had to kick. This time Washington was stopped and forced to punt. The Tigers taking over on the 48. The Tigers went to the air and quickly scored. Sims threw to Hennis for 18 yards. Heath tossed to Hennis for 23, then the Tigers were penalized for delaying the game when a substitute went in. Hill made a yard, then Sims passed to Hennis for a touchdown. Dade kicked the extra point.

The second Tiger score came as the climax of a march from their own 21-yard line, in the third quarter. Eight ground plays were run. A pass fell short, then Sims hit Dade for 8 to the Washington 32. Four ground plays made 10 yards, then Sims passed to Dade over the goal line. Again Dade's kick was good.

The Tigers held on to their one-point lead until O'Brien turned in his beautiful run.

The Blue Lions outplayed the Tigers most of the game. The line constantly outplayed the Tiger forwards and the tackling of the visitors was loose.

The Washington C. H. band put on a nice show at the half, the feature being the playing of "Three O'Clock in the Morning" with all the lights on the field turned out. Before the game a big "S" for the seniors was formed and last year members of the football squad, band and cheerleaders were introduced.

The thief promptly finds Dithers, taps him heavily upon the skull, and departs with a bag full of washers, trolley car tokens and out-dated beer checks. Dithers, always hard to please, calls for a new system of protection, and Blondie comes to the rescue with a fool-proof plan.

MYSTERY GIRL DATE

Fellows on furlough will find femininity at its fittest when they compete on "Blind Date" to be escorts for three glamor girls Monday. The girls are June Meyer, lovely cover girl, Ann Loyd Jacobs, pretty associate editor of "Young America" and a mystery glamor girl. The three winning service men take the girls to the Stork Club at the sponsor's expense.

GUESTS ARE NUMEROUS

Songstress Ella Mae Morse, Bob Strong's orchestra and the Eddie Hayward Sextet get together to cut a set of V-Discs, on the Army Service Forces' "For the Record", Monday. Martin Block returns for his third successive week as guest emcee, in this session in which musical selections are recorded for shipment to the fighting fronts.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

It is no longer necessary to be present in the visible audience to question speakers on "America's Town Meeting of the Air," now that the Thursday night forum has revived its practice of welcoming questions by mail. The questions must be stated in 25 words or less, and must be in the hands of the program's producers no later than the day preceding the broadcast. Listeners whose questions are used will be rewarded with associate memberships in Town Hall, and a year's subscription to the Town Hall Bulletin.

Courageous Marjorie Lawrence, the Metropolitan Opera Soprano, who overcame a severe illness which kept her bedridden for a year and then went to Australia to entertain the fighting folk there, relates stories of her tour when she appears as a guest on "We, the People" Sunday.

Judith Wood has a new slant in acting and it's paying off for her. She learned that there's a scarcity of artists who can portray authentic oriental roles so she concentrated in that particular field and is in great demand for many programs. Currently, you hear her as a Japanese spy on "David Harding—Counterplay".

Lucius Beebe, gourmet and fashionable reporter, found the taste of lemon meringue pie unusually diverting when he appeared as guest on Milton Berle's "Let Yourself

County Contributes Heavily To Milkweed Pod Collection

422 LIFE BELTS MADE POSSIBLE BY LOCAL FLOSS

Rev. S. C. Elsea Turns In 105 Bags, Giving Credit To Logan Elm Grange

Enough milkweed floss to make fillers for 422 life preservers has been collected in Pickaway county.

Friday 544 bags were sent to Chillicothe to be stored in the Ross county nursery until it can be shipped to Petoskey, Mich., for threshing and processing.

Although the total number of bags of milkweed pods collected in the county was not as great as expected, the collection was considered very good for a county in which milkweed is not too plentiful.

Champion collector in the county was Rev. S. C. Elsea who turned in 105 bags filled with milkweed pods. Money to be paid for the pods collected by Rev. Elsea will go to the Logan Elm Grange.

Walnut township school led the county schools with 151 bags. Second was Pickaway with 103.

The drive was staged in all of the county schools and was in charge of County Superintendent George D. McDowell. Filled bags of pods were collected from schools all over the county Thursday by county and state highway department trucks. Three trucks were required to transport the bags to Chillicothe.

Collections from other counties also will be stored at Chillicothe and will be shipped from there by train to Michigan.

The complete report, submitted to Superintendent McDowell by truck drivers who made the collection, showing the total number of bags turned in by schools and organizations is as follows: Girl Scouts, 8; Corwin street, seventh grade, 2; Logan Elm grange, 12; Madison township school, 37; Washington, 60; Tarlton, 2; Salt creek, 59; Pickaway, 103; Perry, 1; Deer creek, 4; Wayne, 9; New Holland, 68; Boy Scouts, troop 205, 3; Commercial Point, 75; Duval, 23; Ashville, 34; South Bloomfield, 17; Muhlenberg, 8; Jackson, 10; Monroe, 17; Darby, 32; High street school, 4; Walnut township, 151; Rev. Elsea, 105.

Payment at the rate of 20 cents per bag will be made by the government. The total of $108.80 for the Pickaway collection will be made to Superintendent McDowell and funds distributed to each school or organization.

and care to consult Churchill, he might reply that, since the Congress leaders are in jail, a meeting such as is contemplated is impossible. The answer could be that certain of the leaders, notably Gandhi, might be freed unconditionally in order to attend the conference. The British may even be searching for a good excuse to release Gandhi, for the struggle between him and the Viceroy is over with honors for both — protest against the Government by his successful fast, and has come back into the limelight.

"There is nothing new in my suggestion, except the method of approach to the problem. The British have already announced their willingness to grant freedom to India after the war, if the Indians have agreed among themselves as to its form. The Indians say they cannot agree because they have no confidence in the British promises. The proposed plan perhaps provides the guarantee required by the Indians, and is in line with British declared intentions.

"Possibly this is a way out of the impasse, which, if allowed to continue, may affect our conduct of the war in this part of the world and our future relations with colored races. It may not be successful but, at least, America will have taken a step in furthering the ideals of the Atlantic Charter.

"I offer the suggestion now in order that it may have your consideration before my return to Washington at the end of April or early May, when I shall be able to give you at first hand further information on the subject."

"Sincerely yours,"

"William Phillips."

NATIONAL BOOK WEEK SCHEDULED FOR CHILDREN

National Book Week for Children will be celebrated November 12-18 with special exhibits and displays of books "around the world" at the Circleville Public Library. This year's theme is United Through Books and there will be paper dolls in foreign dress, flags, books, pictures, and posters appropriate to this motif.

This last week, too, Mrs. Enid Denham librarian, has been making special visits to the grammar schools of Circleville with the cooperation of Frank Fischer, superintendent, and has invited the several classes to the library to see the displays, to make out membership cards if they do not already have them and to withdraw books from the library. Mrs. Denham also showed the children two books, one a copy of the first juvenile book ever printed, the "Pretty Little Pocket Book" of John Newberry, a book that celebrated its 200th anniversary of publication this Fall, and the very modern "Katy No Pocket", by H. A. Rey, a story of a kangaroo in a quandary. At this time too the little diplomas were given the children who had earned them this last Summer by following a course of reading during the vacation. Those receiving diplomas were: Corwin Street School: Gene Dowler, Patsy Johnson, Gordon Blake, Roy Denham, Rosemary Goff, Beatrice Bass, David Cunningham; at Franklin Street School: Donna Hallam, Elizabeth Glitt, Wilma Wilkinson, Marjorie Mae Allen, Ronald Ethridge, Jordan Lefko, Nancy Goldsberry, Robert Moeller, Betty Cunningham and Harold Huffer; High Street School: Jane Wallace, Nancy Watt, Mary Jane Watt, Marilyn Radcliffe, Beverly Southward, Miriam Marcy, Buddy Marcy, Martha Ballou; and at Walnut School: Howard Cook. In the county schools, Donald Barr and Weta Mae Leist will receive their certificates.

WOMEN TO KEEP JOBS

MINNEAPOLIS — Seventy percent of women employed in war plants plan to continue working after the war, the Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. reports as the result of a survey. The report suggests, however, that many women may change their minds because peace time jobs for surplus feminine labor probably will average considerably lower pay.

JEEP GOES TO BLAZES

TOLEDO — A firefighter "Jeep" — designed to serve as an auxiliary unit for urban and rural fire companies and to protect the nation's industrial plants — has answered 34 emergency alarms during 18 months of experimental service at Toledo Willys-Overland plant.

Bits on Books

By Enid Denham

National Book Week To Be Celebrated November 12-18

Marguerite De Angeli has written many lovely books about old world customs and traditions being kept alive in America — "Copper Toed Boots," "Amish Moving Day," "Petite Suzanne" and now "Up the Hill," a pleasant picture of home life of Polish family in a Pennsylvania mining town. The story opens with Christmas and ends with the following Easter, two festivals especially dear to the Polish race and filled with folklore, dancing, and fun. The village school gave an entertainment in which the youngsters dressed in their native costumes and told tales of their parents' homelands, gaining a great deal in sympathy and understanding of one another as they did so.

A satisfactory story with a great deal of beauty and kindness woven in the telling, profusely illustrated with richly colored pictures and drawings.

"Golden Basket," by Ludwig Bemelmans pictures old Bruges with its bells and canals, its neighbors, its tall chestnut trees and the swans on the green waters as seen through the eyes of two very alert little English girls. It rained for three weeks (the mayor claimed the townspeople blamed him for it) and it is amazing what the two little girls and their father and Jan could get into in so short a time, even to falling in the canal and drying off at a museum. A delightful picture of Bruges and a very quaint hotel.

"Swords and Sails In the Philippines," by Phyllis Ayer Sowers is a very different type of book from the peaceful one mentioned above. Here is excitement, adventure picturing the Japanese attack on the Philippine Islands as seen by young Abdul a Filipino. Author and artist, who made this book have lived in the Orient and the portrayal they give is accurate and authentic, — tropical villages, background, the people themselves. Children in fourth through seventh grades will find the story stirring, full of courage and patriotism with little Abdul fighting to defend his island from the invading Japs.

From Sowers story of the Philippines we go on to "Two Viking Boys" (Rolf Karke's Saga) told and illustrated by Hedwig Collins. Helge and Roar were two small Danish boys robbed by their uncle of their royal heritage, and the story of how they regained their rights is skillfully told. There are entertaining details of their clothing, their games, play, and warfare, their friends and their homes and of the way they lived, history and traditions that have been made part of our lives through the people that have brought them to our shores. An excellent contribution to the theme of our National Book Week which is "United Through Books."

These books may be obtained from the Circleville Public Library.

BLIND AS A BAT

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Contrary to popular opinion, owls can't see in the dark, according to Dr. Lee R. Dice, director of the University of Michigan Laboratory of vertebrate biology, who has conducted hundreds of tests to determine the lower limits of owl vision. The experiments proved, he said, that when in total darkness, the nocturnal bird is as "blind as a bat."

DRAFT BOARD GOES MUM ON CALL MATTERS

Members of the Pickaway county Selective Service Board have adopted a policy that they will not individually discuss the matter of any registrant's classification with any person or a group of persons. In numerous instances board members have been approached at their homes and offices by persons concerned over classifications. The Selective Service Board office is located in the Court House, Circleville, Ohio. Any information pertaining to the matter of classification should be submitted to that office in writing.
